EDUCATION

Ph.D., Philosophy

Arizona State University, 2008 - 2013

Dissertation: Emergence and Cosmic Hermeneutics

Committee: Bernard W. Kobes (chair), Ángel Pinillos, Steven Reynolds, Terry Horgan

Dissertation Summary: Emergentism is the view that sometimes “the whole is more than the sum of its parts”. Originating in J. S. Mill’s System of Logic, emergentist accounts have been offered for a whole host of phenomena in the natural and social sciences, most notably phenomenal consciousness. However, it is rarely clear what claims of “emergence” are committed to. I offer a coherent and unified account of emergence, and defend it as an intermediate position between materialism and dualism from common objections.

INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS

Watson, J. (2019) Cogbooks: Introduction to Logic, Cambridge University Press.

I composed a creative-commons licensed OER text that introduces formal and informal logic to students, which was then published within an online adaptive learning system ("Cogbooks") with text readings, videos, interactive exercises, quizzes, and supplemental resources, while tracking their progress. While CUP has discontinued Cogbooks, the OER version of the text is freely available at introductiontologic.com

Watson, J. (2016) Introduction to Philosophy: Deducing Answers, Kendall Hunt, Dubuque, IA.

An introduction to philosophy textbook with focused descriptions of philosophical problems, such as skepticism, the mind/body problem, and free will, and includes an anthology of historical and contemporary texts.
